MOTOR CYCLES

"MADE LIKE A GUN"

The 125 c.c. Royal Enfield lightweight motor cycles have undergone gruelling treatment in the hands of our Airborne troops. In Airborne operations these little machines have been dropped by parachute in a tubular crate (also made by us) or transported by glider to the sphere of activity. Like the superb men who rode them they are really tough, for they were often called upon to traverse country "impossible" for larger, heavier machines. Similar models—in peace-time dress—will soon be available to the public.
