

Proposed Trip to London.

As you have read in the editorial, we are proposing to organise another trip to the big city. This will take place on a Saturday in March or April, it's up to you. Those of you who want to go, give your names to any of the committee members. If you want to take a friend that's O.K., the more that go the cheaper will be the fare, this will be about 16/- anyhow, so let's be having the names, chaps. We will start at 7.30 and when we arrive in London it's up to you where you go, as the coach will drop you at a convenient point and pick up at the same place at 12.00p.m. Some of you might want to book for a show or something so let us know what Saturday you prefer and then we can book the coach etc.

As you will know Mr. Sandilands left the Company in January to take up a position with another organisation.

Mr. Sandilands' position as Apprentice Supervisor has been filled by Mr. Welsher who has now been promoted from head of the Jig & Tool Design Office to Mr. Baker's assistant. As some of you may know Mr. Welsher first started at this Company as an apprentice in 1945. He has worked his way up from apprentice to Apprentice Supervisor, this shows that all apprentices have a chance of obtaining a really good job with the firm providing they work hard with this objective in view.

Mr. John Taylor, senior apprentice, rose to propose the guests' health and in doing so outlined the events of the past year in which the apprentices had an interest. He went on to thank the management for their donation to the apprentice funds, which, he said, helps to keep the price of the dinner at a reasonable level. He finished by telling an amusing anecdote, an appropriate ending for a
